

RVC Food Management Co., Inc.
McDonald's Licensee
22 Bennett Street
Rockville Centre, New York 11570-2252
(516) 764-2443

October 14, 2005

Dear Local Businessperson:

My wife, Joan, and I have been the proprietors of the Denton House McDonald's for the past fifteen years. We joined the Greater New Hyde Park Chamber of Commerce shortly after opening our restaurant. It was a good decision.

A healthy business community is good for everyone in the area. Obviously, it is good for the merchants who have their business in that community. Less obvious, but just as important, is the benefit a thriving business area brings to the entire community. Besides the convenience afforded to the local residents, a prosperous business sector improves the value of the community – both aesthetically and economically. The community becomes more desirable and the values of all properties – residential and commercial – increases. The tax base is increased in support of both the schools and the local governmental entities.

The Chamber of Commerce enhances this process. It permits the local businesses to interact with each other in meeting their mutual needs through networking and the pursuit of common goals. It supports worthwhile community programs. It provides a platform to permit the merchants to communicate with the residents in meeting the concerns of both sides. It allows the collective business body to interface with the governmental authorities at the village, town, county and state levels to ensure that, as governmental programs/initiatives evolve, they meet the needs of all those effected.

A healthy Chamber of Commerce is in the interests of all area merchants and businesspeople. It is a reflection of a thriving business community functioning not only on its own behalf but on that of the wider community. Its effectiveness clearly depends on the membership and participation of all local businesses. I, therefore, urge all local businesspeople to join the Greater New Hyde Park Chamber of Commerce today and begin to immediately enjoy the benefits of your participation.

Sincerely,

Lawrence J. Anderer, Jr.
Owner/Operator